Branded Installations

With typography, icons, and stylistic motifs.

MATCHING THE ENVIRONMENT

Created in various sizes, the interactive installations occupy prominent spaces such as lobbies, conference rooms, and hallways. The installation uses mixed materials such as steel, wood, epoxy, 3D printed objects, or even textiles, that create a unique piece that reflects your brand.

ADDING AMBIENCE

When brand or identity is absent, interactive sculptures fill spaces to reflect a feeling of quiet responsiveness, ready to interact with human presence. Lighting is embedded under designed elements that reflect organic shapes, patterns, and textures, which are richly combined with materials such as steel, wood, ceramics, and epoxy.

CREATE YOUR PATTERN

Working with the installation artist, you decide which how the lighting responds to the environments, fitting in with the materials and design of the installation. Decide on color and illumination patterns to highlight the space in response to sensors and code. Fast or slow, it's fine-tuned just for your space.

Examples

Each installation is sized differently, from small-scale to large multi-panel formats, using unique materials, patterns, and designed elements that match the motif of your space. Projects are split between a Design/Build phase.

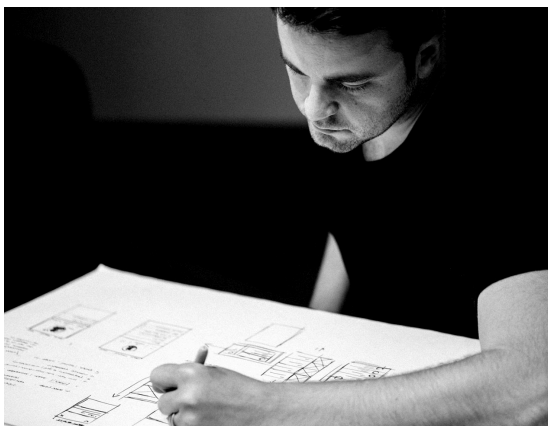

ALL INSTALLATIONS INCLUDE

- A combination of unique custom shapes, letters, patterns, and icons to fit the space.
- Fabrication with materials such as wood, steel, epoxy, and 3D prints, etc...
- Custom programmed lighting responding with selected sensors, such as motion, sound, and more.

About the Artist

Ben Faubion is a designer and maker, working with large brands, startups, and agencies such as Kawasaki, Disney, IBM, and more to design their apps, websites, and ad campaigns. As a second generation artist, and a graduate from Laguna College of Art + Design (LCAD) B.F.A. Design/Illustration, he's bridged his past design experience into creating interactive installations and sculptural art with tech-based mixed media.
